Transfer of C. Ross Hunsicker, Montclair avenue, local manager of the Container Corporation of a new paper plant in Fernandina, Fla., was announced Saturday.

The transfer will be effective April 1.

Mr. Hunsicker came to Circleville three years ago from New York city.

The management here will be assumed by Robert L. Ekkins, Northridge road, who has been plant engineer.

Officials of the Strawboard, said Saturday they hoped to have the 14 new rotaries, being installed in the plant, in operation in about three weeks. The new rotaries replace 11 old ones.

The new equipment and improvements on the plant in recent months amounts to approximately $75,000.

STRIKE OF TAXI IN CHICAGO AREA DRIVERS LOOMS

CHICAGO taxi drivers threatened to put 3,660 cabs in storage unless officials of the Yellow Cab and Checker Cab companies agreed to their demands for adjustment of working conditions. Police were prepared to prevent violence while drivers who have already struck concentrated on enlisting others in their movement.

One hundred and fifty "5 and 10" girls went back to work in two F. W. Woolworth stores in Detroit after a week-long sit-down strike which brought higher wages and a shorter work week to 1,200 employees in 40 stores in the Detroit area.

United Automobile Workers' conferences with representatives of the Chrysler and General Motors corporations were in adjournment until Monday. Union leaders reported that the U. A. W. and Chrysler were "closer together" on the question of sole collective bargaining rights for the company's 67,000 workers.

In Saginaw, Mich., Robert Travis, union organizer, said he knew the identity of four men who tossed a tear gas bomb into a group of 200 Malleable Iron company workers at an informal meeting last night on the U. A. W.'s plan to solicit memberships among employees of Saginaw plants making products for General Motors.

Italian Troops Kill 160 Ethiopians In U. S. Embassy, London Reports

LONDON, March 6.—(UP)—Reports circulated today from usually reliable sources that Italians entered the American legation at Addis Ababa after the recent bombing attempt and killed 160 Ethiopians who took refuge there. In addition, reports from other sources said, an unnamed American missionary was beaten.

The reports were not confirmed. It was reported, as regards the alleged killing of 160 Ethiopians, that the American state department had protested a violation of American property.

It was known that many Ethiopians were killed after the bombing attempt, in which Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, viceroy of Ethiopia, was wounded.

The American missionary was said to have been beaten while conveying two Ethiopians in an automobile.

Different Sources Report

Allegations of the entrance of Italians into the legation grounds and of the beating of a missionary came from two different sources. The source which reported the missionary incident expressed doubt regarding the legation incident. This source said that 700 Ethiopians took refuge in the legation grounds on February 22 and remained until February 24, after Cornelius Van H. Engert, American minister, was assured they were safe.

The bombing attempt occurred February 19. Diplomatic quarters at Rome had reported previously their belief that after the bombing attempt in which Graziani was wounded Fascist militiamen got out of hand for a time, until military units restored order.

By coincidence, the American Embassy at Rome disclosed yesterday that Cornelius Van H. Engert, American minister resident at Addis Ababa, was due to leave the Ethiopian capital this week and would not return. It was added that the legation would remain vacant, so far as a minister went, for the time being but that the diplomatic mission to Ethiopia would not be cancelled. Thus the American government still would recognize Ethiopia as a sovereign nation and would not recognize Italy's conquest.

The Addis Ababa correspondent of the Rome newspaper Tribuna reported that Engert already had left Addis Ababa for the United States, intending to go by way of Rome. The Tribuna saw in his departure de facto recognition of the conquest.

Lawson, commanding officer of the 94th pursuit squadron of Selfridge Field.

R. E. A. SAYS CENT SIX SMUGGLERS, FAIR RATE FOR CARGO OF OPIUM TAKEN BY T-MEN

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(UP)—The Rural Electrification Administration said today that a wholesale rate for electricity of approximately one cent per kilowatt hour would be considered a reasonable charge by a private generating plant to farmers' electric cooperatives.

The supposed wholesale rate was in line with the recommendations of Morris L. Cooke, former REA administrator, who said before leaving office that he had sought with partial success to bring the private utilities' charges to distributing systems constructed under REA to that figure.

"Since the difference of a fraction of a cent per kilowatt hour in the wholesale rate of electricity will sometimes make the difference between a sound and unsound project, every effort should be made to buy energy for one cent per kilowatt hour or thereabouts," REA said.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(UP)—Treasury agents reported today that they had seized six smugglers and a cargo of opium with a retail value of $500,000 in New York harbor today aboard the steamship Taybank.

Agents said 1200 tins of the drug were located. They reported they were now working to determine the source of the opium.

Duey is a World War veteran.

The Rev. L. C. Sherburne, pastor of St. Philip's Episcopal church, will speak at 10:15 o'clock on the subject, "The Child." Fred C. Clark will speak at 10:45 a. m. on "Crippled Children and Easter Seal."

MAN, 52, JAILED IN POISON PLOT, TAKES OWN LIFE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 6.—(UP)—Glenn Edward Henschell, 52, accused by police of poisoning drinking water with cyanide tablets in an effort to kill his wealthy uncle, today took his own life by swallowing one of the lethal pellets.

His body was discovered in his jail cell by Deputy Sheriffs Donald Polkpydyke and Arthur Barney. Dr. Ralph G. Cook, coroner, pronounced his death suicide.

Henschell was arrested last night after his uncle, William Wallace, 54, landowner, had complained that a pail of drinking water drawn from his well gave off a peculiar odor. A Kalamazoo druggist told police Henschell had purchased cyanide tablets, under pretense of using them for nickel plating.

The suicide victim was Wallace's only heir. The Wallace estate included large landholdings and about $9,000 cash.

BUILDING ADDS TO ACTIVITY IN CLEVELAND RUHR

CLEVELAND, March 6.—(UP)—Industrial expansion unequalled since the pre-depression era today promised a new boom for America's "Little Ruhr."

A wave of programs calling for doubled plant capacity had found new impetus in recent wage-hour agreements in the steel industry and was highlighted by preparations for one of the biggest shipping seasons in Great Lakes history.

The industrial valleys of the Cleveland-Youngstown area prepared for new activity in absorbing their share of the payroll addition which will follow creation of an estimated 40,000 new jobs in the steel industry. Youngstown mills even reported a shortage of skilled labor.

In Cleveland, "where coal and ore meet," Republic Steel is building a $15,000,000 plant. Thirty-five hundred new steel jobs in Cleveland and nearby Lorain will bring the area an estimated three to five-million dollar payroll addition.

Rails, Other Associated Stocks, Touch Prices Made in 1931

NEW YORK, March 6.—(UP)—Steels and rails soared to new highs in active trading at the stock market opening today, carrying the list to new highs since 1931.

NEW YORK, March 6.—(UP)—Stocks soared to new highs since 1931 this week, responding to strikeless adjustment of the steel labor situation.

Wall street was enthusiastic when the giant U. S. Steel Corp. smashed all steel industry precedent by bargaining with an outside union—the C. I. O.—and steel shares shot ahead to the highest levels in many years.

The steel corporation's subsidiaries fell into line, granting the 40-hour week, time and a half for overtime and a $5 daily minimum wage to workers. Steel prices were raised by the corporation later to meet increased costs.

Elimination of strike fears meant continuance of a high operating rate for the steel industry, now producing steel around the highest levels compatible with equipment and raw material supplies.

U. S. Steel Common led the whole market higher, rising to 61 per cent above its final price of 1936.

Meanwhile the automobile industry continued to step up output. Ward's estimated production this week at 127,134 units, a new high since 1929. Traders turned their attention to Motor shares again and they made substantial gains.

GOVERNORS ASK F. D. TO CONTINUE RELIEF SPENDING

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(UP)—Governors of six important industrial states call on President Roosevelt today to ask that the government continue its heavy unemployment relief spending in the 1938 fiscal year.

Executives of New York, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin, Massachusetts and Rhode Island are protesting against administration plans to cut work rolls by 600,000 needy persons to keep WPA within a $1,537,123,000 limit.

This development, federal plans for new expenditures and pressure against projected economies threatened to jeopardize Mr. Roosevelt's conditional promise to balance the federal budget in the 12 months after July 1.

Funeral to be Tuesday at 10 in East Liverpool

Albert E. Reid, 36, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson F. Reid, died in Martins Ferry hospital at 6 a. m. Saturday of injuries he suffered Friday evening when his automobile skidded on a curve and turned over three times near Warrenton.

Mr. Reid, a graduate of Jackson township high school in 1922 where he was a stellar basketball player, was enroute to Tiltonville from East Liverpool to attend a sectional basketball tournament. He was accompanied by four East Liverpool basketball players, Jack Maley, Kenneth Seibert, Jack Hines, and William Vocial, all of whom suffered cuts and bruises. None of the youths is seriously hurt, however.

Manuel Arts Supervisor

Mr. Reid has been manual training supervisor in the East Liverpool schools for the last 12 years. He has also served as faculty manager of athletics, a position he filled at the time of his death.

The accident did not stop the East Liverpool cage team from continuing in the tournament, the tradition of the stage, "The show must go on" being followed.

Mr. Reid's parents live two miles north of Circleville on Route 23.

STATE TO CHECK ITS RELIEF LIST TO HIT 'CROOKS'

COLUMBUS, March 6.—(UP)—Plans for a systematic check of every relief client in the state to end "chiseling" were under consideration today by the joint house-senate special relief committee.

Decision to write such a proposal into the new relief bill was made following a statement by Roy L. Wildermuth, chairman of the state relief commission, that relief costs in 1937 would total $25,819,730. A total of $27,413,416 was spent in 1936, he said.

Members of the state relief commission, called before the committee yesterday to aid in drafting a permanent relief bill, said the "purge" plan had been used in other states with great success.

According to the plan, investigators from the state relief commission, state auditor's office or county relief boards would canvass every relief client to determine whether he was actually in need of governmental aid.

It was also proposed to require each relief applicant to swear to an affidavit as to his true financial status.

John Caren, executive secretary to Gov. Davey, told the committee that the administration favored a permanent relief bill to eliminate the necessity of having each legislature re-enact a new law.

Champion Grower

A LITTLE less than an acre of land brought William L. Sears, 16, of Scottsville, Ky., a yield of 1,828 pounds of burley tobacco, a profit of $942 and recognition from Kentucky's 4-H clubs as the state's junior tobacco growing champion. Considering Kentucky's rating in the tobacco world, Sears' title is virtually equivalent to national junior honors. The youth is a high school student.

SOVIET RUSSIA ADDS TO POWER OF ITS MASSES

MOSCOW, March 6.—(UP)—The Communist party, the final authority in Soviet Russia, announced today a drastic program of democratization in its organization intended to give the mass of people stronger control in keeping with the new national constitution. An election of new party committees, all the way from the committees of factory workers, through the district, regional and national committees and up to the supreme central committee, was ordered. The election is to be held before May 20.

Announcement of the program, regarded as of great importance because of the absolute power of the communist party—of which Joseph Stalin, the national strong man, is the head—was made only a few hours after the expulsion of two of the most prominent leaders of older days on charges of anti-party activities.

Nikolai Bukharin, until recently editor of the government newspaper Izvestia, and Alexei Rykov, one time premier and until recently commissar of communications, are the men dismissed. In the past such dismissals often have been followed by trials for anti-government activities.

The American hospital unit operating with the loyalists near Aranjuez, 25 miles south of Madrid, was in the vicinity of the raid. It was not known whether any members of the unit were wounded. WHEELER LEADS DRIVE TO HALT REFORM ACTION

Nation-Wide Campaign to be Started in Effort to Defeat Revision

RAIL INQUIRY DELAYED

Judges Meet to Consider New Deal Legislation

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(UP)—Congressional foes of President Roosevelt's Supreme Court reorganization program united today for an immediate nation-wide campaign.

Accepting the challenge to carry the controversy to the country, they abandoned informal tactics and organized an intensive drive. It was planned a series of conferences lasting until late March night under the immediate leadership of Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont.

First attack on the reorganization under the new strategy will come from Sen. Edward R. Burke, D., Neb. In a radio address tonight, he revised his speech to reply to the president's Thursday night defense of the plan.

Investigation Delayed

Wheeler cancelled his railroad finance investigation for the present and devoted his entire energy to the court controversy. He drafted a speech which he will make Wednesday night in answer to Mr. Roosevelt.

The Supreme Court—center of the controversy which has broken Democratic lines—met, meanwhile, in its secret Saturday conference. It considered decisions on vital New Deal legislation which may be handed down Monday.

"Not a senate vote has been changed by the President's speech," Wheeler and Burke agreed after a new check of opposition strength.

Burke announced that Sen. David I. Walsh, D., Mass., previously uncommitted on the court bill, would be one of four speakers against the plan at a New York city mass meeting next Friday. The others will be Sen. Walter F. George, D., Ga., representing the south; Sen. Royal S. Copeland, D., N. Y.

SPANISH REBELS KILL 34, WOUND MANY IN MADRID

MADRID, March 6.—(UP)—Nationalist air raiders, in four smashing air raids during the night, killed 34 persons and wounded 100 in Madrid and the area along the front, Loyalist authorities said today.

The American hospital unit operating with the loyalists near Aranjuez, 25 miles south of Madrid, was in the vicinity of the raid. It was not known whether any members of the unit were wounded. Starting last night and continuing until this morning, the nationalists bombed Madrid's northwestern suburbs and other metropolitan areas; Tarancón, important Valencia road junction 46 miles southwest of the capital; Alcala De Menares, 18 miles northeast of Madrid on the Guadalajara road, and Aranjuez city.

WHEELER LEADS DRIVE TO HALT REFORM ACTION

Nation-Wide Campaign to be Started in Effort to Defeat Revision

RAIL INQUIRY DELAYED

Judges Meet to Consider New Deal Legislation

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(UP)—Congressional foes of President Roosevelt's Supreme Court reorganization program united today for an immediate nation-wide campaign.

Accepting the challenge to carry the controversy to the country, they abandoned informal tactics and organized an intensive drive. It was planned at a series of conferences lasting until late last night under the immediate leadership of Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D. Mont.

First attack on the reorganization under the new strategy will come from Sen. Edward R. Burke, D. Neb. In a radio address to-night, he revised his speech to reply to the president's Thursday night defense of the plan.

Investigation Delayed

Wheeler cancelled his railroad finance investigation for the present and devoted his entire energy to the court controversy. He drafted a speech which he will make Wednesday night in answer to Mr. Roosevelt.

The Supreme Court—center of the controversy which has broken Democratic lines—met, meanwhile, in its secret Saturday conference. It considered decisions on vital New Deal legislation which may be handed down Monday.

"Not a senate vote has been changed by the President's speech," Wheeler and Burke agreed after a new check of opposition strength.

Burke announced that Sen. David I. Walsh, D. Mass., previously uncommitted on the court bill, would be one of four speakers against the plan at a New York city mass meeting next Friday. The others will be Sen. Walter F. George, D. Ga., representing the south; Sen. Royal S. Copeland, D. N. Y., representing the north.

Nation - Wide Campaign to be Started in Effort to Defeat Revision land, D. N. Y., from the east; and Burke, representing the mid-west.

Administration Busy

Administration supporters hailed the president's first judiciary speech as spurring their battle to press the court legislation through congress. They renewed their campaign to rally public and congressional support.

Both factions of organized labor, it was learned, were preparing to join the administration campaign. The Committee for Industrial Organization is expected to pledge its support at a meeting here next Tuesday. A statement was reported being prepared by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in support of the program.

Burke forecast far-reaching political effects if the president's plan should be enacted—a development which he said he considered impossible.

"If the president puts his plan across, there would result a series of farm and labor legislative measures of a type this country has never dreamed and the eventual outcome would be realignment of parties in the United States," he said.

Burke and Wheeler agreed that, as a result of the president's appeal to the farmers, the laborers, the small businessman and the poverty-stricken, opponents of the plan would "fight fire with fire."

"There can be no compromise," Burke said.

Closer organization of the opposition also was speeded by Sen. William H. King, D. Utah. He said that valuable time was being lost by earlier failure of the opponents to map a definite program and that action should be taken at once.

The insistence on organization led to half a dozen conferences in which Democratic foes of the plan took a leading part. They were assured solid Republican aid.

Filibuster Scouted

Prospects of a filibuster by opponents of the court bill were sharply discounted by a legislative high in the opposition ranks. Both sides agreed that the controversy was so closely fought that the outcome was uncertain.

The administration appeared to be taking no chances on letting up on its campaign to convince both congress and the nation of what President Roosevelt termed the necessity of Supreme Court enlargement to permit enactment of administration social and economic legislation.

On Monday labor's non-partisan league will hold a conference here to spur its nationwide campaign to enlist wage earners in support of the court program.

On Tuesday, the president will make the second of a series of radio addresses on the judiciary issue. He was expected to deal directly with his proposal for enlargement of the court in a sequel to his Thursday night speech.

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 7, is John, chapters 14 and 15, especially 14:1-15, the Golden Text being 14:6. "I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father, but by me."

THE FOURTEENTH chapter of John has been called "the comforting chapter". It is probably the favorite of more Christians than any other chapter in the Bible.

The Untroubled Heart

It is so precious because it points out the way to the untroubled heart. "Let not your heart be troubled: believe in God, believe also in me." Faith, then is the way to the untroubled heart. Faith unites the soul with God and gives to the soul the calm and peace and stability of God. Hope also is the way to the untroubled heart the hope that if things are not right here they shall be hereafter: "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I come again, and will receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." If Christ loves us enough to want us with him eternally, this love of his lights the way for our faith and hope to find the way to the untroubled heart. "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be fearful."

"I Am the Way"

The disciples were troubled about their Master's words that he would shortly leave them and return to his Father. It was too profound a mystery for them to fathom. Where was he going? How could they follow? How could they find the way? "Jesus saith, I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father, but by me." Like Jacob's ladder, his foot is on earth and his head in the heavens. His perfect humanity contacts man here below, his perfect deity contacts God in the heavens. Thus our Lord, as God-man, bridges the breach sin made between God and man and links not only heaven and earth, but is "the way" of at-onement between unrighteous man and a holy God. He is also "the truth"

God Is Like Jesus

How many a child has been told, "you are in the image of your father." Jesus bore such a resemblance to his heavenly Father that to know one was to know the other. Therefore, Jesus said, "If ye had known me, ye would have known my Father also; from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him." And when Philip missed the point, and said, "Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us," Jesus replied, "Have I been so long time with you, and dost thou not know me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; how saist thou, Show us the Father? Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? . . . Believe me that I am in the Father and the Father in me." Should our heart ask then, "What is God like?" the answer is, "God is like Jesus, for he and God are one, and knowing Christ we know God."

"Greater Works Than These"

That this faith is not too "otherworldly" to be practical in this life Jesus himself assures us, saying, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go to the Father."

WORLD TRADE PROSPECTS

THOUGH some disappointment has been expressed as to the paucity of results which were expected to follow the Three-Power Monetary Agreement announced last September by the United States, Great Britain and France, a good deal of activity is now visible in the field of foreign trade. Recent signs, which indicate both currents and cross-currents, may be listed as follows.

In the United States, a key nation in the problem of reviving international commerce, power has been given to the President to go ahead with reciprocal trade treaties for another three years.

Great Britain and Canada have renewed the Ottawa Agreement for another five years, extending imperial preference.

Scandinavian countries and their neighbors are taking vigorous steps toward expansion of trade among themselves, and with England and the United States.

Germany has abolished barter trading with the Philippines, China, Egypt, the Sudan, British India, Burma, Ceylon, the Straits Settlements and Siam, probably marking the beginning of the end of the barter system.

Germany and Italy have declined invitations to the conference on the distributions of raw materials to be held at Geneva under auspices of the League of Nations.

These activities all point to a steady growth in international trade, which may yet be given a tremendous impetus by a reciprocal agreement between the United States and Great Britain, the two greatest importing and exporting countries.

TIME FOR COOPERATION

THE strike wave that is sweeping across the country is doubtless due in large part to the conviction of certain labor leaders that current evidences of economic recovery justify an attempt to procure higher wages, shorter working hours and the closed shop.

However, it is likely that this slant may prove to be not only fallacious but extremely damaging to the cause of the workman.

If business and industry are seriously hampered during the recovery period another economic decline of dangerous proportions may eventuate.

Present conditions plainly call for co-operation between capital and labor; not for the kind of unproductive bickering and strife that inevitably lead to lower wages, diminished purchasing power and unemployment.

From Harrisburg comes the report that Pennsylvania will launch an investigation of its pawnshops. However, it's pretty late for a legislator to try to get his overcoat out of hock.

'ROUND CINCINNATI . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Overlate in bed, having read too far into the night, so hurriedly into attire, a gulping of coffee and then away by wagon in the bright sunshine of a beautiful morning. Soon into routine of the day, making up as near as possible the lost time and much impressed by an increasing geniality. Out and about the village to greet friends and learn of the day's news.

Bowed in fine friendliness to Oscar Howard, the banker, and Linc Mader, the mortician, and then chatted with Joe Burns, learning that the L. M. Butch shop has occupied the same site for 56 years, it being there many long years before Joe put in his personal appearance in this world.

Learned with horror that a local youth with a peculiar quirk of mind gains his thrills by driving the highways at 60 miles an hour at night, seeing how close he can come to sidwiping other automobiles. Voiced hope that he meet up with a twenty-ton truck rather than the pleasure car of a man of family. Well, what else can be expected when the state issues to anyone with the money a license to operate a deadly machine?

Here comes Robert Anderson bearing an authentic copy of The Southern Sentinel printed on wallpaper at Alexandria, La., on July 10, 1863. A most interesting publication and remarkably well preserved. Chatted with Sam Rader, just back from Pike county, and learned that the groundhogs are out about on the ground and bluebirds and robins in the air of his native heath.

Much puzzled by a story about Mrs. Albert Palm's pet hen. For three years the bird lived in tranquility and then a week ago in the nighttime and amid the barking of neighborhood dogs and a cry of "Chicken thieves!" she disappeared. This very day, Mrs. Palm found her pet returned, once more the reigning queen of the chicken yard.

Idled with the group in front of the building being remodeled by Dr. Jackson for his new office and turned attentive ear to reports of this and that improvement contemplated for the Spring. An interesting sight, other men at labor, and one always certain to attract a goodly group of on lookers.

Home early to oil hinges of the icebox with lubricant provided by fellow Rotarians following an eloquent appeal by Frank Lynch. Frank urged generous contributions to buy new hinges and a door that he declared certainly must need replacement after long hard usage, but, possibly because he put more humor than heart into his plea, the offering was entirely copper. So, when the next war comes along and Liberty Loan speakers are being sought the scrivener gives no recommendation to the box proving tempting, did pull up a chair and snack right heartily, washing it down with a free bottle of Coca Cola, for as Frank did not say in his talk, but probably thought — who ever heard of a cow advertising her product.

BILL BULLITT BACK WITH NEW PLAN

WASHINGTON — William Christian Bullitt, meteoric mystery man of Mr. Roosevelt's foreign relations, is back on another mission so mysterious that not even the State Department knew in advance what it was all about.

Inside fact, however, is that Ambassador Bullitt has come back with a personal plan for preserving the peace of Europe, which he is putting up to the President.

This is not the first international peace plan Bill Bullitt has pulled out of the gray felt hat which covers his round and barren head.

Back in 1932, after Roosevelt had been elected, but not yet inaugurated, Bullitt made a mysterious round of the European capitals laying plans for Roosevelt's subsequent talks with Ramsay MacDonald, Herriot and other delegates to the London Economic Conference.

Then, as now, Bullitt remained carefully in the background. He had no official status, no diplomatic passport, and he denied out of both sides of his mouth that he represented Roosevelt. Yet on the very day Roosevelt was making the same denial at his Warm Springs press conference, it subsequently developed that Bullitt had phoned the President-elect from the study of Ramsay MacDonald at No. 10 Downing Street.

SOCIAL SCION

Bullitt's yen for the unusual was cultivated at an early age. Scion of a wealthy Philadelphia family, he was graduated from Yale, and then came home to startle the staid society of the City of Brotherly Love as a playboy journalist, even wrote a sensational novel about it, called "It's Not Done."

The United States entered the World War while Bill was a foreign correspondent, and he left the newspaper game to join the State Department, from which he was catapulted into fame and furore as an adviser to Woodrow Wilson at Versailles.

Bullitt's biggest job during the peace conference was a secret emissary to Russia to arrange relations with the newly formed Soviet. Lloyd George and Clemenceau cut the ground from under him by placing the Allied money on the White Russians, but Bullitt came back convinced there was something in the Russian revolution which would live.

There is an irrepressible streak of idealism constantly bubbling up in Bill Bullitt, but at the Versailles Conference it was almost quenched. Finally he resigned, returned home, and later gave sensational evidence before a Senate Committee regarding the pitfalls ahead of European peace.

SOVIET ENVOY

Subsequent events have more than justified Bullitt, but his optimistic idealism remains undimmed. It was this idealism which inspired Bullitt's part in the resumption of relations with Russia, Roosevelt would have recognized Russia anyway, but Bullitt pushed it to an earlier conclusion, later became first U. S. Ambassador to the Soviet.

Experience teaches us it is easy to keep the peace, if you don't object to having a foot on your neck.

Causes and Importance of Persistent Coughs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SEVERE epidemic of what was generally called flu throughout the United States during the winter now ending, has left a number of people with a persistent and irritating cough, and we have received many inquiries as to what to do about this.

The cough has been quite thoroughly studied, even to the extent of taking volunteer patients and putting needles into the pleural cavity in the space between the lung and the chest wall in order to measure the changes of pressure during a cough.

A cough has been called by Dr. Jackson, "The watch-dog of the bronchial tree." By this he meant, of course, that cough is a protective mechanism which is designed to empty all the bronchial tubes of infectious secretion. But it also has certain dangers. It not only expels the infectious material from the lungs and bronchi, but it also spreads this material around from an infected area to an uninfected area.

Three Phases Noted
Studying the actual physiology of cough, and making note of the various changes in pressure, it has been described as having three phases:

(1) The Inspiratory Phase: During this the patient is impelled by reflex nervous actions to take a big breath so as to fill the lungs with air.

(2) The Compression Phase: In this the chest begins to shut down, but the glottis or vocal cords are closed. This creates a strong positive pressure within the chest and within the bronchial tubes.

(3) The Expulsive Phase: In this the glottis is slightly open, allowing forceful expression of the previously compressed air and secretion.

In these actions, the muscles of the chest wall do most of the work; the diaphragm does not get in it to any extent.

A cough has been compared to the action of a gun. The first phase is the loading of the gun; the second, or compression phase, is the explosion of the powder and the building up of pressure, and the third is the expulsion of the bullet. Cough itself is a helpful thing so long as it results in bringing up the last remains of an inflammatory residue from gripe or influenza. But it may get to be habitual, due to the irritation of the larynx and the persistence of the cough reflex, in which case measures should be taken to stop it with steam inhalations, sedatives, cough lozenges, etc. Rest in bed for a day, with a cold compress on the throat, will often terminate a cough which yields to no other measures.

Any persistent cough, however—that is, one that lasts over three weeks, should be investigated, as it may be the result of something not quite so simple as plain convalescence from flu.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. CHAPTER 39

MRS. JOEL PAYNTER crossed one knee over the other, perused the columns of her newspaper with some show of boredom, yawned and dropped the paper to the floor.

It was Sunday and Joel was enjoying the funny papers.

"Nothing to interest you, Mrs. Paynter?" he asked lazily.

"Nothing at all," she said, and picked up her knitting. "Except that I am stirred out of my ennui to read about Ervina St. James. The critics seem to be really excited about his performance. I always thought he was a competent screen actor but he has had no experience at all in the theater. After all, the theater is art and the screen is not."

"Umm," Joel answered and rattled his papers.

Janet peered at him from under her lids.

"I think it's a great mistake for screen people to try and storm the theater."

"Why?"

"Well, why not let well enough alone?" Janet saw that Joel had put down his paper. "Why not be satisfied with making a lot of money and doing it easily without any worries, any temperaments? I mean, why not be satisfied with something that makes no demands—like the screen? All you have to have to be successful is a face people like."

When I caught a nice big fish that time, Janet thought as Joel swung around on the lounge so that he could regard his wife.

"What are you getting at?" he said.

Janet picked up a dropped stitch, counted the ones on her needle and replied after a while, "What do you mean, getting at what? Can't I give you an opinion without your getting energetic about it?"

"You seem to be running down your husband's profession."

"I'm doing nothing of the kind! I'm trying to point out how lucky we are. Some people don't know when they're lucky. Screen actors wanting to rush right into the theater when a little success goes to their heads!"

"What's wrong with that?" Joel inquired heatedly.

Janet sighed, loudly. "Nothing, dear, nothing. Only you, your very own self, have said time and time again that the theater required more than picture actors had to give it. I'll bet you've forgotten how you used to feel about the theater."

"That brought no response so Janet tried again.

"I'll bet you've even forgotten your theater technique."

"How many times have I told you not to call it 'theater technique'?"

"Pardon me," she said flippantly. "I hadn't forgotten but I thought you had."

"Me?" he asked ungrammatically. "I'll never forget. I've wanted to be an artist ever since I can remember."

Janet put down her knitting and her voice was very gentle. "I know you have, darling. And you've been so unselfish all these years."

Her husband gave her a sharp puzzled glance and waited.

"You've always wanted to be in the theater and you've had to leap through hoops doing the antics that the box office demands of you. Do you know, Joel, I think about that often and I tell myself—if Joel hadn't married me and had financial responsibilities, he wouldn't have to do this. He might still be in the east and doing great things, things that really mean something, in the theater."

"Kitten, you just forget about yourself being a responsibility. I guess I can afford the luxury of a wife. But in a way you're right, Jan."

"Yes?" Janet answered attentively with an infection at the end of the word. She wanted Joel to go on.

"I mean about the things I have to do. Haven't I told you how many times I've felt like a foot hanging on to some girl's hand with a hang-dog expression in my eyes?"

"Certainly," she said soothingly with no recollection of any such assertions.

"Why, long before we were married I told you why I wanted to be an actor. I told you how I felt about art. Don't you remember?"

Janet could have said that she'd have the dig of long years back in her memory, that she'd heard little of that these last years. Instead she said, "You're always talking about it. But I suppose now it is too late."

"Too late!" Joel fairly exploded.

"Calm yourself, darling. I was only going to say that you couldn't be expected to pull up stakes and go east and start all over again. That would be ridiculous."

"Now, you're being ridiculous. If I wanted to get a play on Broadway, I could do it easily. I could get a release from the studio. It's a matter of fact, they're way ahead on my schedule and I'd probably be laid off for a month or two until my option is picked up. It might be a good idea at that."

"What might be a good idea?" Janet asked innocently.

"If I were to try a season on Broadway."

Janet laughed and laughed and then she said, "If you aren't the contrary one! I believe you've just You're Telling Me!

ROME, Italy, March 6.—Dictator Mussolini expressed great pleasure on hearing of Great Britain's plan to increase her navy by 80 new warships.

"Well," he said, "I wish Italy could afford a navy like that, but we can't."

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 6.—The 1937 Pulitzer prize was awarded today to Joe Doakes, studio press agent, who'd 4,000 publicity items and advertisements for a new motion picture without once using the words "colossal," "gigantic" or "super-epic."

NEW YORK, March 6.—A taxi cab driver at Grand Central terminal, on receiving the exact amount for the fare from a passenger, with no allowance for a tip, today bowed, smiled and said, "Thank you, sir."

CHICAGO, March 6.—A Clark street car motorman made a complete round trip of his route today without once dingling the bell in warning at an imaginary obstruction.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 6.—Society women, lolling about on the beach in their latest bathing creations, sent a formal request to photographers not to take their picture and, if a picture were taken, to please keep it out of the rotogravure section of their home town newspapers.

BERLIN, Germany, March 6.—Dictator Adolf Hitler today called a world conference to discuss the problems of the non-Aryan races. "We are all brothers under the skin," said the Fuehrer, "and we must strive for racial equality if we are to have lasting world-wide peace."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 6.—Greta Garbo was today elected president of the National Association of Women's Debating and Literary societies. She accepted the office in a speech which lasted four hours.

IT IS SELDOM that we present Professor Dumbkopf two days in succession—especially since any exuberance exhausts his brain for three days. But last night's radio programs were like a drug that maddens, then stupefies.

"I have a program to end all radio programs," the professor says. "It will have the 12 loudest comedians. They all will begin singing their theme songs at once. This will be the warning."

"Then, each at the same time, in his loudest manner will begin laughing. And there will be terrific applause from the studio audience. This will give the doomed men false courage."

"Then each will hit his favorite stooge over the head, amid roars of laughter—from the studio audience."

"Then each man will begin telling the same joke at the same time—the one about the orchestra leader having a fat stomach. You know. And that is the real beginning of the end."

"Each comedian will say it's his own private joke, stolen from his master mind by other weaker minds—and each will begin punnelling the others, and the audience believing it all a part of the show, will applaud louder and louder."

"Finally, the embittered comedians, each trying to defend his right to knocking the oldest jokes, will begin hitting each other on the head, their softest spot—and that will be the end of all radio comedians."

The paradox of the odd lot remnant counter in a bargain basement is that there is the one place in the world where women battle to keep the piece.

The human brain is nature's most marvelous invention. The trouble is that nature so seldom operates one at full capacity.

It is estimated the average woman walks 13 miles a day doing her household chores. A nice, little stroll but she can't say much for the scenery.

Man, says a philosopher, becomes accustomed to and unconcerned about the most baffling miracles. For instance, we've stopped wondering how bus drivers get around busy corners without knocking everything over.

Imagine a Nipponese officer giving his men a command just before a battle: "Do not fire until you see the whites of their knee-caps."

Up to press time it was not known whether the Japanese government had ordered confiscation of all kiddy cars, to be converted into armored tanks.

THE IVY GREEN

Oh, a dainty plant is the Ivy green, That creepeth o'er ruins old! Of right choice food are his meals I ween,

In his cell so lone and cold. The wall must be crumbled, the stone decayed,

To pleasure his dainty whim: And the mouldering dust that years have made

Is a merry meal for him. Creeping where no life is seen, A rare old plant is the Ivy green.

Fast he stealth on, though he wears no wings, And a staunch old heart has he. How closely he twineeth, how tight he clings

To his friend the huge Oak Tree! And slyly he traileth along the ground,

And his leaves he gently waves, As he joyously hugs and crawleth round

The rich mould of dead men's graves. Creeping where dim death has been, A rare old plant is the Ivy green.

Whole ages have fled and their works decayed, And nations have scattered been; But the stout old Ivy shall never fade,

From its hale and hearty green. The brave old plant in its lonely days, Shall fatten up the past: For the staidest building man can raise,

Is the Ivy's food at last. Creeping on where time has been, A rare old plant is the Ivy green.

—Charles Dickens.

If business and industry are seriously hampered during the recovery period another economic decline of dangerous proportions may eventuate.
Present conditions plainly call for co-operation between capital and labor, not for the kind of unproductive bickering and strife that inevitably lead to lower wages, diminished purchasing power and unemployment.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:
Overlate in bed, having read too far into the night, so hurriedly into attire, a gulping of coffee and then away by wagon in the bright sunshine of a beautiful morning. Soon into routine of the day, making up as near as possible the lost time and much impressed by an increasing geniality. Out and about the ville to greet friends and learn of the day's news.
Bowed in fine friendliness to Oscar Howard, the banker, and Linc Mader, the mortician, and then chatted with Joe Burns, learning that the L. M. Butch shop has occupied the same site for 56 years, it being there many long years before Joe put in his personal appearance in this world.
Learned with horror that a local youth with a peculiar quirk of mind gains his thrills by driving the highways at 60 miles an hour at night, seeing how close he can come to sideswiping other automobiles. Voiced hope that he meet up with a twenty-ton truck rather than the pleasure car of a man of family. Well, what else can be expected when the state issues to anyone with the money a license to operate a deadly machine?

Here comes Robert Anderson bearing an authentic copy of The Southern Sentinel printed on wallpaper at Alexandria, La., on July 10, 1863. A most interesting publication and remarkably well preserved. Chatted with Sam Rader, just back from Pike county, and learned that the groundhogs are out about on the ground and bluebirds and robins in the air of his native heath.
Much puzzled by a story about Mrs. Albert Palm's pet hen. For three years the bird lived in tranquility and then a week ago in the nighttime and amid the barking of neighborhood dogs and a cry of "Chicken thieves!" she disappeared. This very day, Mrs. Palm found her pet returned, once more the reigning queen of the chicken yard.

BILL BULLITT BACK WITH NEW PLAN
WASHINGTON — William Christian Bullitt, meteoric mystery man of Mr. Roosevelt's foreign relations, is back on another mission so mysterious that not even the State Department knew in advance what it was all about.
Inside fact, however, is that Ambassador Bullitt has come back with a personal plan for preserving the peace of Europe, which he is putting up to the President.

This is not the first international peace plan Bill Bullitt has pulled out of the gray felt hat which covers his round and barren bean.
Back in 1932, after Roosevelt had been elected, but not yet inaugurated, Bullitt made a mysterious round of the European capitals laying plans for Roosevelt's subsequent talks with Ramsay MacDonald, Herriot and other delegates to the London Economic Conference.
Then, as now, Bullitt remained carefully in the background. He had no official status, no diplomatic passport, and he denied out of both sides of his mouth that he represented Roosevelt. Yet on the very day Roosevelt was making the same denial at his Warm Springs press conference, it subsequently developed that Bullitt had phoned the President-elect from the study of Ramsay MacDonald at No. 10 Downing Street.

SOCIAL SCION
Bullitt's yen for the unusual was cultivated at an early age. Scion of a wealthy Philadelphia family, he was graduated from Yale, and then came home to startle the staid society of the City of Brotherly Love as a playboy journalist, even wrote a sensational novel about it, called "It's Not Done."
The United States entered the World War while Bill was a foreign correspondent, and he left the newspaper game to join the State Department, from which he was catapulted into fame and furor as an adviser to Woodrow Wilson at Versailles.
Bullitt's biggest job during the peace conference was a secret emissary to Russia to arrange relations with the newly formed Soviet. Lloyd George and Clemenceau cut the ground from under him by placing the Allied money on the White Russians, but Bullitt came back convinced there was something in the Russian revolution which would live.
There is an irrepressible streak of idealism constantly bubbling up in Bill Bullitt, but at the Versailles Conference it was almost quenched. Finally he resigned, returned home, and later gave sensational evidence before a Senate Committee regarding the pitfalls ahead of European peace.

SOVIET ENVOY
Subsequent events have more than justified Bullitt, but his optimistic idealism remains undimmed. It was this idealism which inspired Bullitt's part in the resumption of relations with Russia. Roosevelt would have recognized Russia anyway, but Bullitt pushed it to an earlier conclusion, later became first U. S. Ambassador to the Soviet.
Experience teaches us it is easy to keep the peace, if you don't object to having a foot on your neck.

Causes and Importance of Persistent Coughs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE SEVERE epidemic of what was generally called flu throughout the United States during the winter now ending, has left a number of people with a persistent and irritating cough, and we have received many inquiries as to what to do about this.
The cough has been quite thoroughly studied, even to the extent of taking volunteer patients and putting hollow needles into the pleural cavity in the space between the lung and the chest wall in order to measure the changes of pressure during a cough.
A cough has been called by Dr. Jackson, "The watch-dog of the bronchial tree." By this he meant, of course, that cough is a protective mechanism which is designed to empty all the bronchial tubes of infectious secretion. But it also has certain dangers. It not only empties the infectious material from the lungs and bronchi, but it also spreads this material around from an infected area to an uninfected area.
Three Phases Noted
Studying the actual physiology of cough, and making note of the various changes in pressure, it has been described as having three phases:
(1) The Inspiratory Phase: During this the patient is impelled by reflex nervous actions to take a big breath so as to fill the lungs with air.
(2) The Compression Phase: In this the chest begins to shut down, but the glottis or vocal cords are closed. This creates a strong positive pressure within the chest and within the bronchial tubes.
(3) The Expulsive Phase: In this the glottis is slightly open, allowing forceful expression of the previously compressed air and secretion.
In these actions, the muscles of the chest wall do most of the work; the diaphragm does not get in it to any extent.
A cough has been compared to the action of a gun. The first phase is the loading of the gun; the second, or compression phase, is the explosion of the powder and the building up of pressure, and the third is the expulsion of the bullet.
Cough itself is a helpful thing so long as it results in bringing up the last remains of an inflammatory residue from gripe or influenza. But it may get to be habitual, due to the irritation of the larynx and the persistence of the cough reflex, in which case measures should be taken to stop it with steam inhalations, sedatives, cough lozenges, etc. Rest in bed for a day, with a cold compress on the throat, will often terminate a cough which yields to no other measures.
Any persistent cough, however—that is, one that lasts over three weeks, should be investigated, as it may be the result of something not quite so simple as plain convalescence from flu.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. CHAPTER 39
MRS. JOEL PAYNTER crossed one silken knee over the other, perused the columns of her newspaper with some show of boredom, yawned and dropped the paper to the floor.
It was Sunday and Joel was enjoying the funny papers.
"Nothing to interest you, Mrs. Paynter?" he asked lazily.
"Nothing at all," she said, and picked up her knitting. "Except that I am stirred out of my ennui to read about Ervina St. James. The critics seem to be really excited about his performance. I always thought he was a competent screen actor but he has had no experience at all in the theater. After all, the theater is art and the screen is not."
"Umm," Joel answered and rattled his papers.
Janet peered at him from under her lids.
"I think it's a great mistake for screen people to try and storm the theater."
"Why?"
"Well, why not let well enough alone?" Janet saw that Joel had put down his paper. "Why not be satisfied with making a lot of money and doing it easily without any worries, any temperaments? I mean, why not be satisfied with something that makes no demands—like the screen? All you have to have to be successful is a face people like."
"Whee, I caught a nice big fish that time, Janet thought as Joel swung around on the lounge so that he could regard his wife.
"What are you getting at?" he said.
Janet picked up a dropped stitch, counted the ones on her needle and replied after a while. "What do you mean, getting at what? Can't I give you an opinion without your getting energetic about it?"
"You seem to be running down your husband's profession."
"I'm doing nothing of the kind! I'm trying to point out how lucky we are. Some people don't know when they're lucky. Screen actors wanting to rush right into the theater when a little success goes to their heads!"
"What's wrong with that?" Joel inquired heatedly.
Janet sighed, loudly. "Nothing, dear, nothing. Only you, your very own self, have said time and time again that the theater required more than picture actors had to give it. I'll bet you've forgotten how you used to feel about the theater."
Janet tried again.
"I'll bet you've even forgotten your theater technique."
"How many times have I told you not to call it 'theater technique'?"
"Janet, it's an art, not a technique!"
"Pardon me," she said flippantly. "I hadn't forgotten but I thought you had."
"Me?" he asked ungrammatically. "I'll never forget. I've wanted to be an artist ever since I can remember."
Janet put down her knitting and her voice was very gentle. "You know you have, darling. And you've been so unselfish all these years."
Her husband gave her a sharp puzzled glance and waited.
"You've always wanted to be in the theater and you've had to leap through hoops doing the antics that the box office demands of you. Do you know, Joel, I think about that often and I tell myself—if Joel hadn't married me and had financial responsibilities, he wouldn't have to do this. He might still be in the east and doing great things, things that really mean something, in the theater."
"Kitten, you just forget about yourself being a responsibility. I guess I can afford the luxury of a wife. But in a way you're right, Jan."
"Yes?" Janet answered attentively with an infection at the end of the word. She wanted Joel to go on.
"I mean about the things I have to do. Haven't I told you how many times I've felt like a fool hanging on to some girl's hand with a hang-dog expression in my eyes?"
"Certainly," she said soothingly with no recollection of any such assertions.
"Why, long before we were married I told you why I wanted to be an actor. I told you how I felt about art. Don't you remember?"
Janet could have said that she'd have to dig a long way back in her memory, that she'd heard little of that these last years. Instead she said, "You're always talking about it. But I suppose now it is too late."
"Too late!" Joel fairly exploded.
"Calm yourself, darling. I was only going to say that you couldn't be expected to pull up stakes and go east and start all over again. That would be ridiculous."
"Now, you're being ridiculous. If I wanted to get a play on Broadway, I could do it easily. I could get a release from the studio. As a matter of fact, they're way ahead on my schedule and I'd probably be laid off for a month or two until my option is picked up. It might be a good idea at that."
"What might be a good idea?" Janet asked innocently.
"If I were to try a season on Broadway."
Janet laughed and laughed and then she said, "If you aren't the contrary one! I believe you've just says. 'It will have the 12 loudest comedians. They all will begin singing their theme songs at once. This will be the warning.'"
"Then, each at the same time, in his loudest manner will begin laughing. And there will be terrific applause from the studio audience. This will give the doomed men false courage."
"Then each will hit his favorite stooge over the head, amid roads of laughter—from the studio audience."
"Then each man will begin telling the same joke at the same time—the one about the orchestra leader having a fat stomach. You know. And that is the real beginning of the end."
"Each comedian will say it's his own private joke, stolen from his master mind by other weaker minds—and each will begin punning the others, and the audience believing it all part of the show, will applaud louder and louder."
"Finally, the embittered comedians, each trying to defend his right to knocking the oldest jokes, will begin hitting each other on the head, their softest spot—and that will be the end of all radio comedians."
The paradox of the odd lot remnant counter in a bargain basement is that there is the one place in the world where women battle to keep the piece.

Poems That Live

THE IVY GREEN
Oh, a dainty plant is the Ivy green,
That creepeth o'er ruins old!
Of right choice food are his meals
I ween,
In his cell so lone and cold.
The wall must be crumbled, the stone decayed,
To pleasure his dainty whim:
And the mouldering dust that years have made
Is a merry meal for him.
Creeping where no life is seen,
A rare old plant is the Ivy green.
Fast he stealth on, though he wears no wings,
And a staunch old heart has he.
How closely he twineeth, how tight
he clings
To his friend the huge Oak Tree!
And slyly he traileth after the giant,
And his leaves he gently waves,
As he joyously hugs and crawleth round
The rich mould of dead men's graves.
Creeping where dim death has been,
A rare old plant is the Ivy green.
Whole ages have fled and their works decayed,
And nations have scattered been;
But the stout old Ivy shall never fade,
From its hale and hearty green.
The brave old plant in its lonely days,
Shall fatten up the past:
For the stately building man can raise,
Is the ivy's food at last.
Creeping on where time has been,
A rare old plant is the Ivy green.

"IN AFTER DAYS"
In after days when grasses high
O'er to the stone where I shall lie,
Though ill or well the world ad-

My slender claim to honored dust,
I shall not question or reply.
I shall not see the morning
I shall not hear the night-wind sigh;
I shall be mute, as all men must
In after days
But yet, now living, fair were I
That some one then should testify Saying—"He held his pen in

Will none?—Then let my memory

Garden Club Enjoys Discussion Program

Mrs. Marion and Miss McKenzie Talk of Problems

Mrs. Frank Marion, N. Scioto street, and Miss Mary McKenzie, of the Kingston Garden club, were speakers when Mrs. Ophelia King was hostess, Friday, to members of the Pickaway Garden club, at their March session.

In the absence of Mrs. F. K. Blair, club president, Mrs. Richard Jones presided at the meeting. Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. C. E. Hunter and Mrs. G. G. Campbell were appointed members of a committee to arrange a covered dish dinner to precede the April meeting. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Blanche Motchman.

A study period, devoted to the culture of dahlias and gladioli, was conducted by Mrs. Turney Pontius. A most interesting program ensued, when Mrs. Marion gave a paper on the subject, "The Perennial I Want to Add This Year". She described the colorful beauty to be obtained by careful selection of the ever-dependable perennials and told how to choose them for successive blooming. She spoke of new ones to be obtained and told of the culture of the various kinds. She stressed the necessity of adding annuals here and there for contrast, and the need of root protection for moisture.

"Spring Awakening of the Rock Garden," a subject with which she has had wide experience, was the topic for an instructive talk by Miss McKenzie, who has one of the most outstanding rock-gardens in central Ohio, gave suggestions for materials for rock garden construction, the various factors to

She spoke on the plants best adapted to various seasons of blooming, and told of the types of plants to avoid, the size of the garden, and the size of plants playing an important part in beauty and utility.

Catalogues and new seed lists discussions concluded the evening program. Mrs. James Moffitt displayed a lilac branch in leaf and bud, and sprays of blooming forsythia, that had been taken indoors and placed in water. An exhibit of early Spring flowers will be a highlight of the April meeting, the time and place to be announced later.

Looking forward to the centenary of its founder, Miss Frances Willard, the national W. C. T. U. is raising one million dollars for alcohol education through motion pictures, radio, bill boards, literature and lectures. This amount is being raised and used with telling results.

Reports from many of the twenty-two departments of the W. C. T. U. show that the women were working as never before. A high note of spirituality was sounded, stressing the fact that prayer was one effective weapon which the liquor people could not use.

Mrs. Nellie Barton, of Mt. Sterling, reported that lectures and pictures on scientific temperance instruction had been given in the fifteen public schools of Pickaway county, reaching 1,500 children.

COLUMBUS TRIP SCHEDULED BY E. M. S. FOR 19TH

Friday, March 19, the Epistol Mu Sigma will take their annual educational trip to Columbus.

During the day the group will visit places of interest throughout the city and in the evening they will attend the stage show, "Reflected Glory," starring Talulah Bankhead.

Nana Cooper, Emily Gunning, and Mildred Grose will choose the places which the club will visit and Jessie Dresbach, Ruth Robinson, and Betty Bach will make arrangements for the trip by bus.

Friday noon and evening a candy sale was given to help in financing the trip. Harriet Harman, Medtrich Bach, and Mary Ellen Maxey were in charge.

For her sonnet entitled "To An Old Stairway," Ruth Robinson received a book, "Sonnets from the Portuguese" by Elizabeth Barrett Browning as a prize.

Other original writings read during the meeting were: "Summer-time," a sonnet by Dorothy Newland; "The Short Time That Man Is Here," a sonnet by Mildred Grose; "Trudge On," a short story by Betty May; "Glory," a sonnet by Gail Dauenhauer; "War," a sketch by Medtrich Bach; and "Sonnet of Life," a sonnet by Helen Sayre.

As it has been the custom for each club to present two assembly programs a year, the E. M. S. is considering as its second, the writing of a play, to be called "The Girls," a "take-off" on the current Broadway hit, "The Women."

A safety program was presented to the high school and seventh and eighth grade pupils Wednesday afternoon, March 3.

The program was made up of a four-reel movie. These pictures especially stressed safety rules for safe driving. It is generally agreed that it is easier for people to understand the rules of safety if they can see them in actual practice.

The first of the series of pictures described the news of the day. This feature showed the building of the San Francisco bridge which is the largest in the world.

The next feature was called "Four Square." Most comprehensive designs and developments of modern machinery were shown. Pictures were also shown of the China Clipper as it landed in California after a long flight across the ocean from Hawaii.

"The Other Fellow" starred Ed-Ed Kennedy, one of Hollywood's well known actors. This feature stressed the fact that when driving an automobile, "everyone is the other fellow."

The last number on the afternoon's program was "Formations." This feature gave four specific rules for safe driving, and also gave the signals which everyone driving a car should know: 1. look behind; 2. look ahead; 3. always remember the other car which may be just around the corner; 4. always give the correct signals to let the other driver know what you intend to do. Airplane views were shown so that the audience might more readily realize the dangers of modern driving.

OST OF FAVORED QUINTETS CONTINUE ONWARD IN OHIO TOURNAMENTS

MARK VICTOR OVER NORTH 5; ROSSFORD WINS

Toledo District Provides Upsets as Woodward and Waite Are Defeated

DOVER SHOWS STRENGTH

Mighty Akron Schools on Way to Final Frays

COLUMBUS, March 6—(UP)—Ohio's reigning scholastic basketball champions, Newark and Sandusky St. Marys, today had taken the first steps on a tough trail which they hope will lead them to Columbus for a defense of their crowns.

Newark, maintaining the same whirlwind pace that carried it to 15 victories in 18 starts during its regular schedule, defeated Columbus North in the Central district tournament at Delaware by a 43 to 20 score and the sterling little Sandusky St. Marys quintet turned back Clyde 45 to 26 in a Northwestern district game at Fremont.

Mt. Vernon Faced

Newark swings into action again tonight when it meets Mount Vernon, victor last night over Columbus Central 37 to 24. St. Marys received a second round bye and will not play again until next Friday when it opposes the victor of the Tontogany-Jackson contest.

While the reigning titlists were impressive as they stayed in the running, the most coveted position of any scholastic quintet was that held by the lightly regarded Rossford team from suburban Toledo.

By luck of the draw placed in the tough upper bracket of the tournament at Toledo, Rossford had an easy time in its opener with Toledo Vocational as it won 45 to 26. It then turned in a stunning upset by downing a favored Woodward combine 24 to 18.

Rossford climaxed its amazing play last night when it edged Toledo Waite 25 to 23 in an overtime battle. By virtue of its victory Rossford comes direct to the state tournament.

Findlay, one of Northwestern Ohio's sturdiest teams and a finalist with Newark a year ago, remained in the championship fight when it downed Bucyrus 32 to 25 at Kenton.

One of the Southwestern district's most representative teams came through as expected when Dayton Fairview bested its city rival, Chaminade, 26 to 16 at Dayton.

Dover Goes On

A Dover quintet that secured 13 straight victories during its regular schedule before injuries played havoc with its starting combine showed signs on being on the comeback trail when it ran wild to win 50 to 16 from Barnesville in an Eastern district meet at Dennison.

In the bulky Northeastern sectional at Akron where 29 teams started play early in the week, four last night won their way into the district finals. Five more will gain the coveted places today.

Leading the group into the district finals was Akron North, the state titlist in 1935. North edged Ravenna 15 to 12.

The other three quintets to advance also were Akron schools. St. Vincents remained in the running when it defeated Cuyahoga Falls 33 to 18; Buchtel downed East 25 to 18 and West bested Hower 32 to 21.

The six teams which will go from the "A" sectional at Youngstown to Akron for the district finals were determined also.

Youngstown Rayen and Ursuline and Salem won their way into the choice group Thursday and last night Youngstown South, Chaney and Howland joined them.

South, whose play throughout the tournament was impressive, won from East 44 to 29; Chaney had little trouble as it defeated Hubbard 43 to 28 and Howland took a 20 to 11 decision from Girard.

BIG TEN TITLE AT STAKE FOR SEVERAL FIVES

CHICAGO, March 6—(UP)—Illinois and Minnesota, survivors of a hectic drive that eliminated both the defending champions, carry their fight for the Big Ten basketball championship into Chicago tonight seeking one more victory to clinch at least a share of the title.

Illinois clashes with Northwestern, victor in their first encounter in the season's opener. Minnesota meets Chicago. If Illinois and Minnesota are defeated, Michigan can claim a share of the title by bowing over Wisconsin at Ann Arbor.

The Gophers, however, were heavy favorites over Chicago, placing the real championship battle at Northwestern.

The Wildcats hold one victory over Illinois, but the Illini have lost only to Purdue since.

Both Northwestern and Illinois were at the peak in their last games. The Wildcats came within a few seconds of defeating Minnesota, finally losing by one point.

TRACK RECORDS MAY FALL WITH STARS ENTERED

CHICAGO, March 6—(UP)—Star performers of the winter track season meet tonight in the revival of the historic Chicago relays for an assault on at least three world records.

Present marks in the mile, two mile and high jump were threatened and many personal bests were predicted for each of the featured events.

Glenn Cunningham, king of the milers, will make his last attempt of the year to smash his own world record in the Bankers' mile. Archie San Romo, national A. A. U. 1500-meter champion from Emporia, Kansas, Teachers, also is entered but would rather lick Cunningham than have the record.

FINANCE WINS BETTING ODDS FOR HANDICAP

MIAMI, March 6—(UP)—Mrs. Emil Denemark's five-year-old bay gelding, Finance, goes to the post today an 8 to 5 favorite in the $50,000 added Widener handicap.

Cloudy weather and a slow track were predicted for the second running of one of the country's richest races. More than 25,000 spectators were expected to witness the climax of the winter season at Hialeah Park.

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

They had to pry Andy Devine off his ranch and persuade him to become a small-town grocer in "Small Town Girl," showing Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Circle Theatre.

A casting scout for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, after looking around Hollywood for two days and making innumerable telephone calls, finally found the comedy player on the "north forty" acres of his ranch, in boots and overalls, branding calves.

It took a good deal of persuasion to get him away from the farm, but eventually Devine agreed to place his name on a contract to play a country grocer in "Small Town Girl," starring Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor in the romantic lead opposite.

AT THE GRAND

Shirley Temple—Musical conductor.

No, Shirley hasn't yet directed symphonies or philharmonic orchestras, but in "Dimples," her new Twentieth Century-Fox triumph opening Sunday at the Grand theatre, Shirley directs a musical organization for the first time.

Frank Morgan, Helen Westley, Robert Kent, Astrid Allyn, Delma Byron, the Hall Johnson Choir and Stepin Fetchit are featured in the cast supporting Shirley in "Dimples."

AT THE CLIFTONA

Victor McLaglen and Preston Foster head an all star cast in RKO Radio's "Sea Devils," which opens at the Cliftona Sunday. The picture is the first to deal on a large scale with the activities of the U. S. Coast Guard. Two exciting rescues at sea, one of the crew and passengers of a burning liner and one of the personnel of a yacht blown ashore during a hurricane, and the attempted demolition of a big iceberg off the Newfoundland coast, are among the more spectacular scenes.

On the Tiger schedule so far are Groveport and Worthington—Games will be sought with Mechanicsburg, Grove City, New Lexington and several others—The plan of the school officials is to bring as many different teams to Circleville as possible ***

Sportsmen Meet Tuesday

Next Tuesday brings the annual Pickaway County Farmer's and Sportsman's red snapper banquet—Memorial Hall will be the scene of the dinner since the meeting has outgrown the Elks' club banquet hall—Only speakers on the program are Larry Woodell, director of conservation for the state, and James Stuber, his right hand man—Their talks will not be long—Lots of fun will be provided, and lots more red snapper, too ***

BIRD DOG CLUB SETS NEW DATE FOR CONTESTS

Another change in the dates for the annual spring field trials of the Pickaway Bird Dog club was announced Saturday by Byron Eby, president of the organization.

The new dates are April 10 and 11. Previous dates selected by the local organization conflicted with trials of other Ohio clubs. The trials will be held at Yellowbud.

Three club members, Benford Miller, South Bloomfield, John Streets, Chillicothe, and Glen Parsons, Columbus, took dogs to Dayton, Saturday, for trials being held in that district.

Coca Cola bowlers gained a lopsided three game victory over a Chillicothe 10-pin team in an exhibition Friday evening. The soft-drink outfit kegged 2,721 pins, dropping below the 900-mark only once and that time by four pins.

FINANCE WINS BETTING ODDS FOR HANDICAP

MIAMI, March 6—(UP)—Mrs. Emil Denemark's five-year-old bay gelding, Finance, goes to the post today an 8 to 5 favorite in the $50,000 added Widener handicap.
Cloudy weather and a slow track were predicted for the second running of one of the country's richest races. More than 25,000 spectators were expected to witness the climax of the winter season at Hialeah Park.

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

They had to pry Andy Devine off his ranch and persuade him to become a small-town grocer in "Small Town Girl," showing Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Circle Theatre.

A casting scout for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, after looking around Hollywood for two days and making innumerable telephone calls, finally found the comedy player on the "north forty" acres of his ranch, in boots and overalls, branding calves.

It took a good deal of persuasion to get him away from the farm, but eventually Devine agreed to place his name on a contract to play a country grocer in "Small Town Girl," starring Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor in the romantic lead opposite.

AT THE GRAND

Shirley Temple—Musical conductor!
No, Shirley hasn't yet directed symphonies or philharmonic orchestras, but in "Dimples," her new Twentieth Century-Fox triumph opening Sunday at the Grand theatre, Shirley directs a musical organization for the first time.

Frank Morgan, Helen Westley, Robert Kent, Astrid Allwyn, Delma Byron, the Hall Johnson Choir and Stepin Fetchit are featured in the cast supporting Shirley in "Dimples."

AT THE CLIFTONA

Victor McLaglen and Preston Foster head an all star cast in RKO Radio's "Sea Devils," which opens at the Cliftona Sunday. The picture is the first to deal on a large scale with the activities of the U. S. Coast Guard. Two exciting rescues at sea, one of the crew and passengers of a burning liner and one of the personnel of a yacht blown ashore during a hurricane, and the attempted demolition of a big iceberg off the Newfoundland coast, are among the more spectacular scenes.

Bidding went: East, 1-Diamond, fourth hand; West, 1-Heart; North, 1-Spade; East, 1-No Trump; West, 2-Clubs; East, 2-No Trumps; West, 3-Hearts; East, 3-No Trumps, which stood, doubled by North.

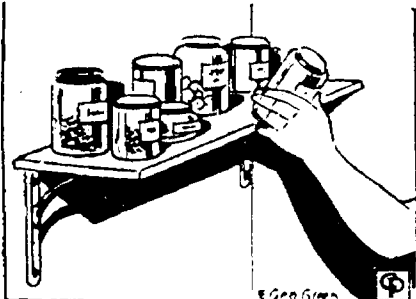

As North had both bid and then doubled the final call, nearly all players will agree that South's opening lead should have been the 10 of spades, and not the 3 of hearts, even if the declarer went down against the heart lead. That was due to his misplay of the cards, not to the choice of opening lead. With the same poor offensive strategy, East would have gone down against either opening lead, while proper strategy would have enabled him to fulfill his contract against either opening lead.

To go down on his contract, evidently declarer must have taken a finesse in hearts, allowing North to win the first trick and lead back spades, taking out one of declarer's high honors of that suit. Now declarer must lose two diamond tricks to North, as declarer cannot lead diamonds through North but once, so that the doubler establishes spades before East can establish diamonds.

The long diamond suit is the backbone of East's no trumps. At all cost East must at once begin establishment of that suit. Play the hand as it should be played, and see if the defenders can avoid giving East a trick above his contract. Win the opening lead with dummy's Ace of hearts. Lead the 10 of diamonds. North should cover with the J and declarer must win with the Q. North has diamonds stopped twice if declarer at once leads that suit from his own hand. To fulfill his contract, declarer must lead diamonds again from dummy.

Lead a low club from declarer's hand. Win with dummy's Ace. Lead the last diamond from dummy. If North plays the 9, win with declarer's K, then give North the Ace of his suit. If North wins with the Ace of diamonds over the 6 led from dummy, declarer will pick up the 9, when he gains entry. North will take his K of hearts, when he gains entry with his Ace of diamonds, then he will lead a spade, which declarer will win with his Ace. Two tricks in spades, one in hearts, two in clubs and five in diamonds will give declarer one trick over game.

To save time and energy in looking for odds and ends, set aside a special "odds and ends" shelf. Stock it with different sized glass jars and bottles, and into these put your odds and ends. A glance at any jar will show you what it contains—small electrical appliances, bolts, nuts, coils, brads, screws, etc.

In houses where there are little children, the thumb bolts on bathroom doors should be of the type that can be opened from the outside with a key, save the organ of the Federal Housing Administration.

EXTENSION OF F.H.A. GUARANTEE PLEASING TO LENDERS AND BUILDERS

DECORATIVE DOOR KNOB USEFUL AT RESIDENCE
The new home the door knob to this small detail is suggested to the prospective owner of a new home.

HALF OF URBAN FAMILIES RENT HOMES, REPORT

More than one-half of non-farm families in the United States live in rented quarters. The greater part of these rented homes are one and two-family houses, many of which are old and in poor condition, while several million families, especially in the larger cities, live in multi-family dwellings.

Many of the rented quarters are occupied by single persons and by families of limited means for whom home ownership is impractical; there is now a large immediate demand for construction of new apartments at low and moderate rentals in most cities. There is also a latent demand for modern one-family houses, both of the detached type and in rows, for rental purposes.

Thus far during the present recovery period private capital has been relatively slow in entering these fields. There is a great immediate need for judicious investments in low and medium-priced rental housing. Interesting results of the Federal Housing Administration's activities in this field during the year are described in its third annual report.

BUILT-IN DRESSING UNIT IS CONVENIENT

A modern bedroom has a dressing unit, comprising two closets, two chests of drawers, and a dressing table built into one end of the room. A large window is located over the dressing table, and mirrors of the same height are set in the corner over the chests, between the window and the edge of the closets. The closet doors have full-length mirrors which may be opened to give a full-length view. Built-in equipment may be included in homes built under the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration.

MONEY IS MADE AVAILABLE FOR OHIO RESIDENTS

District Director Informs

AMENDMENT IS APPROVED
Loan May be Allowed up to $16,000 to Citizens

Lending institutions in central and southern Ohio were notified the last week by District Director A. L. Guckert of the Federal Housing Administration that President Roosevelt has signed the amendment to the National Housing Act passed by Congress which extends for two more years the U. S. Treasury guarantee on debentures issued on Federal Housing Administration insured mortgages.

The news of the extension was received with great enthusiasm by banks, building and loan associations, and other lending institutions as well as by the real estate and building industries generally as heralding a continuation of the free flow of mortgage money.

Beneficial to Building
Although the Federal Housing Administration is a permanent governmental agency and the insurance of mortgages may continue regardless of the action by Congress, it is felt that the psychological influence of the extension will be extremely beneficial in the home mortgage field. The Housing Administration's mutual mortgage fund now totals $15,000,000 and is increasing at the rate of $500 each month.

Loans under the Federal Housing Administration's insured mortgage program are made by private lending institutions and insured by F. H. A. Available up to $16,000, these loans may be repaid in monthly installments over a period of years — in some cases as long as 20 years. Each monthly installment includes principal, interest, insurance and taxes.

With the extension of the guarantee, private capital will be encouraged to continue its participation in the Housing Administration's program with increased activity, it is believed.

Experience Satisfactory
In a statement made public in Washington, Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator, said that the experience of the administration in insuring mortgages has thus far been highly satisfactory. Only twelve properties have been conveyed to the administrator, three of which have already been sold. One of these was sold at a profit of about $150, which was returned to the borrower; another was sold at a smaller profit, also returned to the borrower, and a third was sold at a slight loss. The remainder can probably be disposed of with very little, if any loss chargeable to the $15,000,000 insurance fund.

Fire Hazards Make Precautionary Measures Imperative In Home

WIDE DOORWAYS ADD TO IDEA OF SPACIOUSNESS

A wide doorway from hall to living room creates a feeling of spaciousness. If a home owner contemplates the widening of a narrow doorway, however, he must first assure himself that wall framing which acts as support for the floor above is amply strong to do its duty after some of it has been removed to widen the doorway.

It may be necessary to substitute two stouter timbers at the sides of the opening for the studding which now carries the weight of the second-story flooring and wall and a heavier horizontal member to extend from the top of one of the heavier uprights to that of the other.

Certain types of modernization may be carried out under the terms of the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration.

Questions and Answers

Q. If I put a small cellar under the house I contemplate building, will it keep my first floor free from dampness?

A. Just putting a cellar under the house will not insure the first floor from dampness. If any cellar is built it must be a dry cellar or the dampness from it will penetrate to the first floor. If there is any question of bad water conditions in the ground, it may be better to omit the cellar entirely. But if you must have one, be sure you waterproof it thoroughly either with a membrane waterproofing wrapped around the entire cellar, including the floor, or with a coat of rich cement plaster on the inside, with some metallic waterproofing used in conjunction with it.

Q. I have a bathroom that has the old wood wainscoting, and I should like to cover it. I cannot afford tile, so will you suggest some other way I might do it?

A. If you want a tile effect, there are a number of good wallboards made in imitation of tile that are nice looking and serviceable. If you do not insist upon that appearance, there are waterproof wallboards with plain surfaces that can be used. They can be painted if you like, but the paint should have at least one coat of high-gloss enamel as a finish. Use the best grade of paint and enamel, as steam and hot-water vapor are very hard on them both.

Q. How should a hardwood floor be laid over rough pine underflooring?

A. In the first place, the underflooring should be reasonably level. If the boards are warped, they should be planed down to a level surface. On top of this underflooring lay heavy building paper with the joints well lapped. If the underfloor is laid diagonally to the joists, the direction of the finish floor boards does not matter so much, although it is always better to lay them perpendicular to the direction of the joists. If the underflooring is laid perpendicular to the joists, then the finish floor should be laid perpendicular to the underfloor. The finish floor should be blind nailed on the tongued edge of the boards. The next board is forced up tight against the one already nailed, and so on. Be careful not to damage the edges of the boards when forcing them in; it is best to use a wood block to hammer against. Finish-floor boards come with tongue-and-groove ends as well as sides, and these make a better floor than the butt jointed boards.

FIREPLACE GROUP

The fireplace should be so located in a living room that the furniture which is grouped around it will not be in the direct line of traffic between doors.

HERE ARE THE 3 THINGS YOU WANT IN A FLOOR VARNISH!

A BEAUTIFUL FINISH

LONG WEAR

QUICK-DRYING

Low Brothers Nepeunit Floor Varnish has these three qualities because it's designed for floors. It isn't one of those varnishes claimed to be "good for everything." It gives you a smooth, glistening, beautiful floor that can be walked on in a few hours; and the finish will stand up under the hardest kind of wear you can give it.

Low Brothers also make other high quality Nepeunit varnishes. Each one is designed to do a specific job. "Interior"—high gloss for woodwork; "Rubbing"—for use when the finish is to be rubbed; "Spar"—for exterior use, and "Seat"—for chairs, church pews, and other surfaces where unusually hard-drying is required.

All Nepeunit Varnishes are heat-proof, mar-proof and waterproof. They won't turn white or scratch white. Come in and let us help you get the right varnish for the work you have in mind.

VICTORIAN HOMES, with all their fussy reminders of a by-gone architectural age, need no longer be drugs on the home market. Modernizing, the modern art of creating new homes from old houses, is moving them ahead in style and convenience to the present generation.

. . . And doing it at very small cost. Your old home can be completely rejuvenated in architectural style, convenience, and size at a half or a third of the cost of a new house. And you'll be just as well pleased. You'll still have your lawn, your lovely trees, and your garden. It will still be home . . . but much more convenient and attractive.

HALF OF URBAN FAMILIES RENT HOMES, REPORT

More than one-half of non-farm families in the United States live in rented quarters. The greater part of these rented homes are one and two-family houses, many of which are old and in poor condition, while several million families especially in the larger cities, live in multi-family dwellings.

Many of the rented quarters are occupied by single persons and by families of limited means for whom home ownership is impractical; there is now a large immediate demand for construction of new apartments at low and moderate rentals in most cities. There is also a latent demand for modern one-family houses, both of the detached type and in rows, for rental purposes.

Thus far during the present recovery period private capital has been relatively slow in entering these fields. There is a great immediate need for judicious investments in low and medium-priced rental housing. Interesting results of the Federal Housing Administration's activities in this field during the year are described in its third annual report.

District Director Informs
Banking Institutions and Constructors
AMENDMENT IS APPROVED
Loan May be Allowed up to $16,000 to Citizens

Lending institutions in central and southern Ohio were notified the last week by District Director A. L. Guckert of the Federal Housing Administration that President Roosevelt has signed the amendment to the National Housing Act passed by Congress which extends for two more years the U. S. Treasury guarantee on debentures issued on Federal Housing Administration insured mortgages.

The news of the extension was received with great enthusiasm by banks, building and loan associations, and other lending institutions as well as by the real estate and building industries generally as heralding a continuation of the free flow of mortgage money.

Beneficial to Building
Although the Federal Housing Administration is a permanent governmental agency and the insurance of mortgages may continue regardless of the action by Congress, it is felt that the psychological influence of the extension will be extremely beneficial in the home mortgage field. The Housing Administration's mutual mortgage fund now totals $15,000,000 and is increasing at the rate of $500 each month.

Loans under the Federal Housing Administration's insured mortgage program are made by private lending institutions and insured by F. H. A. Available up to $16,000, these loans may be repaid in monthly installments over a period of years — in some cases as long as 20 years. Each monthly installment includes principal, interest, insurance and taxes.

With the extension of the guarantee, private capital will be encouraged to continue its participation in the Housing Administration's program with increased activity, it is believed.

Experience Satisfactory
In a statement made public in Washington, Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator, said that the experience of the administration in insuring mortgages has thus far been highly satisfactory. Only twelve properties have been conveyed to the administrator, three of which have already been sold. One of these was sold at a profit of about $150, which was returned to the borrower; another was sold at a smaller profit, also returned to the borrower, and a third was sold at a slight loss. The remainder can probably be disposed of with very little, if any loss chargeable to the $15,000,000 insurance fund.

Fire Hazards Make Precautionary Measures Imperative In Home

WIDE DOORWAYS ADD TO IDEA OF SPACIOUSNESS

A wide doorway from hall to living room creates a feeling of spaciousness. If a home owner contemplates the widening of a narrow doorway, however, he must first assure himself that wall framing which acts as support for the floor above is amply strong to do its duty after some of it has been removed to widen the doorway.

It may be necessary to substitute two stouter timbers at the sides of the opening for the studding which now carries the weight of the second-story flooring and wall and a heavier horizontal member to extend from the top of one of the heavier uprights to that of the other.

Certain types of modernization may be carried out under the terms of the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration.

In the United States there are now 523 municipalities containing 27,534,000 people—representing 22 per cent of the national population—which demand protection from fire hazards.

The ever present danger of fire in home dwellings has enforced this ruling as a precautionary measure and as a safeguard to lives and property. It is a reminder, too, to the American home owner of the advisability of utilizing every means available during the construction or modernization of his home to promote safety and to protect his family against fire hazards. Federal Housing Administration inspected homes must meet definite requirements in this field.

On the market today are materials, machinery, and equipment designed and constructed to offset fire risk in the home. Their use may mean security from danger.

Statistics indicate that the operators of manufacturing and mercantile establishments through constant vigilance and strict observance of fire ordinances have reduced the number of fires occurring in such places of business. Fires in home dwellings, however, have increased until now between 55 and 60 per cent of all fires in the country occur in dwellings.

It is estimated that a dwelling-house fire occurs every two minutes and that the total loss from home fires alone amounts to more than $85,000,000. According to Percy Bugbee, expert of the National Fire Protection Association, much of this vast sum might have been saved, because the great majority of dwelling fires may be traced to causes easily corrected. Careless disposal of rubbish, combustible roofs, defective or dirty chimneys, thoughtless use of matches, and improper use of kerosene and gasoline are responsible for many of these fires which sometimes cause serious disasters and always mean disturbing damage.

The home owner makes the utmost effort to provide comfort and convenience for his home. To make his enjoyment of this home complete, if he will give the same consideration to its safety as he does to its pleasant living appointments he will add immeasurably to its protection and will greatly minimize its fire risk.
